8 December 2005 - Lorna Mlofana's accused are found guilty

On 13 December 2003, Lorna Mlofana, an active member of one of TAC's Khayelitsha branches was sexually assaulted then murdered. Her attackers killed her after she told them she was HIV-positive.

- First accused found guilty of murder and rape
- Second accused found guilty of attempted murder
- Sentencing will take place on 3 February 2006

The successful prosecution of Lorna's attackers came about due to the efforts of Prosecutor Badenhorst, Khayelitsha Police Commander Jacobs, Inspector Nash and Inspector Sass. TAC thanks them for their efforts. For two years, TAC members have campaigned relentlessly for a successful prosecution of Mlofana's attackers.

Write to Joyce Masilo, Chair of Select Committee on Social Services, c/o, Arico Kotze, Committee Secretary, Select Committee on Social Services stating that:

- Minimum age of consent for medical treatment in Children's Bill must remain 12 years old and not be pushed up to 14.
- Minimum age of access to contraception must remain 12 years old and not be pushed up to 14 or 16.
- Children have the right to keep their HIV status confidential. Consent to testing and counseling must also be kept at 12.

Therefore do not revise clauses 129, 130, 133 and 134 of the Children's Bill.

2 November 2005 - Analysis of deaths on Matthias Rath illegal clinical trial

Summary

- Analysis of five deaths of patients on Rath's trial
 - For three of these patients Rath is at a minimum responsible for contributing to their deaths.
 - For the other two, Rath is at a minimum responsible for misleading them and creating false hope.
- Several other deaths on Rath's trial have been reported, but we only discuss here ones which we have investigated.
- Minister of Health has responsibility for failing to stop Rath.
- Rath's pseudo-science in conjunction with other pseudo-scientific practices throughout South Africa is causing confusion and costing many lives. This pseudo-science flourishes because it is perceived to be endorsed by the Minister of Health and President Mbeki.

TAC recognised as acceptable organisation to run an HIV/AIDS education campaign:

The Advertising Standards Authority of South Africa (ASASA) has dismissed a complaint by an AIDS denialist against TAC for our widely distributed Talk About Nutrition and HIV public information advertisement. ASASA ruled that our claims were verified. ASASA has also recognised TAC as an acceptable organisation to run "an educational or information campaign addressed to the lay public" on HIV/AIDS.

TAC thanks the following organisations for their assistance in managing this complaint: Southern African HIV Clinicians Society, South African Medical Association, UNAIDS, Soul City, Nutrition Information Centre University of Stellenbosh, AIDS Law Project, Department of Human Nutrition Nelson Mandela Medical School and the AIDS Law Project.

4 October 2005 - Briefing on the Constitutional Court Judgment in the Minister of Health v New Clicks (Medicine Pricing Regulations)

Highlights

- Constitutional Court (ConCourt) upholds pricing regulations scheme issued in terms of Medicines Act, but declares some key regulations unconstitutional
- Pharmacists' dispensing fees declared 'inappropriate' and sent back to Pricing Committee
- While pricing regulations remain largely in force, certain key provisions brought into line with Constitution by ConCourt itself
- ConCourt rules that Supreme Court of Appeal (SCA) had jurisdiction to hear pharmacists' appeal against earlier decision of Cape High Court
- Minister of Health reprimanded for disrespectful conduct in SCA:

"[The Minister] evinced a deplorable lack of respect for ? the highest court in this country in respect of all matters other than constitutional matters.?"

(Former Chief Justice Chaskalson)and?it is just to reflect disapproval of the Minister?s failure to present argument on the merits in ? [the SCA by requiring] the Minister to bear the costs of the Pharmacies in full in that court.?"

- Brief Note on Rath interdict: The court case set for 26 April 2005 to interdict Matthias Rath and his foundation from defaming TAC seems likely to be delayed through events beyond the control of TAC. Rath's advocate has asked the Judge President of the Cape High Court to appoint two judges to hear the case. The Judge President said that if he decided to appoint more than one judge, he would appoint three rather than two. The practice in Cape Town is that three-judge courts sit only on Fridays. The Judge President has still to inform us of his decision. If he decides to appoint more than one judge, it is very unlikely that the case will be heard on 26 April, as we had hoped. Furthermore, the Traditional Healers' Organisation have indicated that they are considering applying to intervene in this case on the side of Rath. This too may lead to a delay. These two factors mean that we do not yet know on what date the case will take place but we are doing all we can to speed up the hearing of the application, which was made on an urgent basis.
